CONNER & WINTERS ATTORNEY RECEIVES THE “LION OF THE BAR” AWARD – GIVEN BY THE COUNCIL OAK/JOHNSON-SONTAG AMERICAN INN OF COURT

TULSA – (May 13, 2008) Anne B. Sublett, a partner in the Tulsa, Oklahoma office of Conner & Winters, LLP, was presented the Lion of the Bar Award by the Council Oak/Johnson-Sontag American Inn of Court this evening at the annual combined Tulsa Inns of Court Banquet. This is widely known as the most prestigious award presented each year by this Inn.

The award's official description tells the story of what this honor means with regard to one's career: "Through a lifetime of contributions to the legal profession, the community, and the law, and a commitment to the highest principles of excellence and integrity, the Council Oak/Johnson-Sontag Inn annually honors this service and recognizes a lawyer who has enriched the lives and careers of generations of attorneys who stand proudly on the recipient's shoulders as a Lion of the Bar."

Ms. Sublett is a graduate of the University of Tulsa, and received her law degree at the Georgetown University Law Center. She is a partner with Conner & Winters, where she chairs the firm's Diversity Committee among other responsibilities. Ms. Sublett practices in the area of employee benefits law. Her clients include large, publicly traded companies as well as smaller private businesses and church benefits boards in Oklahoma as well as throughout the region. Ms. Sublett also has extensive involvement in pro bono representation of abused and neglected children. In addition to representing abused and neglected children in court, she has served on statewide panels dealing with juvenile law and legal practice in that area and received numerous awards for her work. She is also co-founder and president of Tulsa Lawyers for Children, a non-profit organization that recruits, trains and provides ongoing assistance to lawyers who agree to provide pro bono legal representation to abused and neglected children.
